question of the month:

What's in your mind a few seconds before you drop in for your final run at a big contest?

Benny: I'll try to focus on my run and think about some tricks I wanna do...

Niels: Check that my snus is in good shape and try to be focused enough to avoid crashing hard.

Gareth: I'll try to be as confident as possible.

Brandon: My mind goes blank or I'm thinking about stomping everything.

Trond: Food! Because at a contest day I always forget or don't have time to eat and by the time the final is on, I'm starving.

Gareth Dyer

Gareth came all the way from Whistler, Canada to show his fans at the Red Bull District Ride in Nuremberg what tricks he got. He was in a good shape but in the second qualifying he jumped down the big castle wall drop and broke his crank. But that was no reason for Gareth to stop his run. He probably had the first one-footed - run ever in a big mountainbike comp. He rode through all districts and finished this crazy run. 45,000 spectators were screaming. Check out the Freek Shot of the month!!

Niels Windfeldt

After the Adidas Slopestyle Niels took a few weeks off because of his film school but in middle of July he came to Catania for the first Red Bull District Ride 2006. And he rocked it. Niels made it with 9 other riders to the finals and finished 7th. He showed super sick superman-tailwhips and especially the good looking female announcer from MTV Italy was totally in love with him.

Trond Hansen

Trond came to Whistler to show his best tricks again at the Crankworx festival after his big 360-drop crash in Saalbach. Unfortunately he crashed in the training, hurt his shoulder again and couldn't ride the slopestyle event. Currently Trond is in Norway, he moved back to his hometown Bergen two weeks ago to build new dirt jumps together with Niels because they have wicked terrain in Norway to train new tricks. They both will be shooting for bike USA this fall. Trond should be back in action at the next Red Bull freeride comp - the "Red Bull Vozi Bre" in Belgrade, Serbia in mid September.

Brandon Semenuk

The youngest Free:k Brandon from Whistler is currently preparing himself for Monsterpark. Like an old pro in the business Brandon did a lot of big comps like the BRAUN 26TRIX this year. Please be aware which tricks he will show next weekend.

Benny Korthaus

Benny will be getting surgery on his elbow in September, but before he will ride a show for AMD. The computer company wanted Benny for a show at a computer fare in Germany. Benny's buddies built a wooden pool for that show. It looks pretty crazy. The good thing is that they will be able to keep it afterwards, so we can expect Benny and his buddies to ride lots of pool soon in their local spot in Emmering near Munich.
