Brandon Semenuk

New free:k on the team - the 14year old Canadian Brandon Semenuk caused surprise for many Freeride fans at last year's Whistler Crankworx slopestyle. Now he is also on the f'izi:k team and he is crazy about the free:k! Already at SeaOtter he almost stuck 720's and nearly made it into the finals against the world's best dirt jumpers. In end of May he will be going for the first time to Europe to meet up with his free:k team mates to check out Europe's coolest bike parks.

Niels Windfeldt

The Norwegian Niels Windfeldt also caused trouble at last year's Crankworx where he went to the finals of the top 12 - his orange shoes and his great tailwhips impressed the freeride world. Recently he was seen as the first rider with f'izi:k clothing. In 2006 he will be riding with full throttle and big tricks in Freeride pants and shirts from f'izi:k.

Benny Korthaus

The European BMX legend Benny Korthaus is only since this year on the mountainbike. He already got 2nd close behind Trond Hansen this year at the international Riva del Garda dirt jump contest. He stuck tailwhip supermans, but there are rumours that he got way bigger tricks on his to do list.

Gareth Dyer

Gareth Dyer has signed this year with NORCO, but he is still on f'izi:k's free:k Team. He already shot for New World Disorder 7 in May this year in BC. He will be also in most of June travelling all over Europe to join his team mates at the roadtrip to different bike parks and to contests like the Braun 26TRIX, the Adidas Slopestyle and he will be also riding at both Red Bull District Ride comps.

Trond Hansen

Trond Hansen is the hottest Euro freeride gun out there. He made the podium at three dirt jump events and even won two of them. Recently he repeated his success from last year at the Austrian King of Dirt in Linz, Austria. By throwing down all major big tricks he won the contest the 2nd time in a row.
